LUCKY TRIO OF BRAVE FIREMEN. How the Good Mrs. OHEARN REPLACED THE DOG MAJOR IN THEIR APPECTION.

All the members of Engine Company No. 12 at No. 261 William at. are good fellows, and many brave deeds and daring exploits have been recorded to their credit. The engine library and it is appointment are a model of neatness. Everything chines within, from the brass on the ongine to the good house face of the Ordern, has intitul charwesiam berrael in the hearts of the members of Engine Engine Street in the hearts of the members of Engine Street in the hearts of the members of Engine Countless fires, used to be the favorite Mrs. Of Engine ways te as obscure corner like a spoiled child yesterday, when a reporter called to see how Mrs. O'Hearn's supremacy came about.

"You see, sir," gaid Patrick A Delancy, the assistant engineer," may churades, Ed J. Owens, the engineer, and John White, the Breman, and I have been cograting how as we would like by try our lack in the Louisiana State Lottery Company. Now, one of our bosses had been investing, and one day he had just asked Mrs. O'Hearn to go out and fetch him three half tickets. I said to myself that I wouldn't mind patting I into that venture, and so turning round to Ed and John I asked them if they would not also take a hack. They were willing, and we gave Mrs. O'Hearn SI aplace. She went straight up to 319 Broadway, and fifteen minutes alter she was shulling the alx half tickets like a pack of cards for us to choose our three numbers. We cach drew one and agreed to divide the profits.

"Ta never thought any more of the investment until the "The profits."

It into smaller bills. We then divised the corner of the officers of portions risk to that table in the corner of the officers room."

Mr. Boismay as that he deposited his share in the Seamen's Savings B kt, Owens put his in the East River Bank and White inve de part of his in bond and mortgage and the remainde in the East River Bank.

"And that is reason," chimed in Owens, "why we think so much me withan we did of Mrs. O'ficaru, the dear old soul; but of clurse we shall always remember kindly the Louisians Suise Lottery Company, which we believe to be a thoroughly honest and upright institution."
